SUBJECT: Your Work on the Standard Instructions

It is certainly comforting to know that there are people on your staff who can be depended upon to do an outstanding job when the occasion calls for it.

I commend you and thank you for your considerable work in getting the new Standard Instructions published. You may take a great deal of satisfaction from having played such a key role in this publication and from knowing that your contribution will influence the NIS program for years to come.

Congratulations and many thanks for doing such an outstanding job on the new Standard Instructions.
